Sustainability

A prerequisite for our future

Strategic sustainability work

Kiruna as an Arctic destination is unique and exclusive in its reasons for visiting. Our strengths are also our vulnerabilities and we need to cooperate on strategically important issues in order to wisely create conditions and intertwine development with conservation. We draw strength from the challenges of the new age to accelerate our sustainability work.

We will strengthen our identity as an attractive sparsely populated Arctic destination with responsible hospitality industry players. This steering document is a step on the way that will guide and drive our daily and strategic work towards set goals. A job we take on with humility and great commitment. We welcome you to share our development journey where and when you can!

Sustainable Arctic Destination certification

The fact that more visitors choose to travel to Kiruna means that we have to set higher demands on sustainability within the hospitality industry. We have a shared responsibility to ensure that our attractive Arctic everyday life is preserved for future generations and that the increased tourism does not lead to the disappearance or destruction of what is the travel reasons for our visitors.

With the aim of giving companies in the hospitality industry the tools needed to grow and develop in a sustainable direction, Kiruna Lapland has developed the Sustainable Arctic Destination certification system. Our long-term ambition is for the majority of companies in the local hospitality industry to be certified and bearers of the quality label and for Kiruna to develop into a leading destination in green and sustainable tourism.

"Kiruna Lapland's work with SAD is very good. I think it is good for small companies that the SAD certification is not so complicated. In addition, it's free, you don't have to invest money, just time, and you also get help from Kiruna Lapland's employees. In addition to this, they offer their own marketing channel for certified products on their website"

"The value lies in going through and researching the business and bringing out what you yourself think is most important to highlight, as well as becoming aware of what you do and don't do. We are becoming clearer in conveying what we do and why. And how we stand out from others"

"You gained insights into your own company and work aspects, both positive and negative, plus ideas on how to improve. We have also received positive feedback from our retailers and travel agencies."
